

Keep your information secure with our revolutionary StrongDoc™

Today it's easier to "spread the word" than ever before. A single mouse click – and information is all over the globe instantly. So how do you control your documents in a world with file sharing, social media, computer networks and CD burners?

Grenville has the answer: StrongDoc. It's a truly innovative way to distribute sensitive information. With StrongDoc, you're always in control of viewing, copying, modifying and saving. You can even set a time limit for how many times and how long – days, months or years – that documents are accessible.

You can manage the distribution and life cycle of information without ever having to output a hard copy. And reducing our reliance on paper-based files is good for the environment.

How it works

A powerful PDF-based system, StrongDoc was developed by Grenville, a company with years of proven experience in securely managing corporate information.

Using encrypted-key technology – which is vastly superior to passwords – StrongDoc ensures complete control over who may view a document, how many times and if it can be saved, changed or printed.

The correct licence and key are encrypted and locked to individual computers, thus preventing someone at another computer from accessing them.

You can even stop users from taking screen shots.

Flexibility is key too. The administrator can change the expiry and revoke access privileges at any time – on a moment's notice, if necessary – no matter where the documents are.

often copied. never duplicated.

Endless applications

With so many built-in features, StrongDoc is an indispensable tool, one that's perfect for any organization: corporations, governments at all levels, universities and colleges, and small business.

The applications are virtually unlimited. Here are just a few examples:

- decreasing or preventing software piracy for courseware in schools and manuals in industry, because your customer base can no longer copy and pass along what you're trying to sell
- protecting strategic documents such as trade secrets or marketing proposals so they don't fall into the hands of competitors
- controlling sensitive internal information in human resources and purchasing, or in public-sector health and finance departments
